

A Safety Story

How Nicole found stable housing for her family

Raising three children with another on the way would be a difficult task for any set of parents. But after unexpectedly being left to raise her daughters alone, Nicole found supporting her family and keeping her house an impossible feat.

Forced to live in a shelter, Nicole found the United Way's Housing First initiative. Housing First finds a stable housing situation while actively addressing the issues that contribute to homelessness. With the support of Housing First's multiobjective approach of intensive case management, financial coaching and budgeting, Nicole and her three girls have happily found a place they can call home.
